

Renewing Dignity

Everyone deserves the dignity of having essential menstrual supplies

We want to ensure that every person that menstruates is empowered to manage their menstruation safely, hygienically, with confidence and without shame, where no one is limited by something as natural and normal as her period.

More than 2.9 million period products distributed in 2025

How it Works

The program dedicated to eliminating period poverty merged with our food bank in 2024. The partnership helps us leverage our purchasing and distribution capabilities to reach more neighbors. During the program's second year, we were able to distribute more than 2.9 million period products across the more than 400 partners and food programs we work with. Together, we can make sure everyone can maintain their dignity every day of the month.

Why it Matters

- Nearly 1 in 4 students struggle to afford period products in the United States.
- 2 in 5 menstruators struggle to purchase period supplies across the country.
- Period poverty is linked to people using unsanitary substitute supplies, stretching product usage, and missing work and school.
- Menstrual products are not eligible for purchase through federal nutrition programs.

"We need these period products so I can pay other bills."
